Please review the attached press release from AMEX and develop an Accelerated Action Plan to develop/finetune the MasterCard Exclusives usage program. We must allocate the resources to ensure that Master Exclusives is superior to Visa's and AMEX's reward programs. We "might" want to proactively announce this to the press in the future.

Best regards

The Rewards Accelerator Card is an imprecedented value proposition. With its introduction, consumers have the flexibility of choosing between different payment vehicles — American Express products or our new MasterCard or Visa credit card — all of which earn rewards points in one of the most popular rewards programs in the world," said Dennis Alter, chairman of Advanta Corp. "Now, consumers can enjoy the earnings power that comes from putting all of their rewards points into a single concentrated mass."

Harvey Golub, chairman and chief executive officer of American Express, said:

"On average, American consumers use six separate credit cards. And, like all issuers, we know that our customers will occasionally use another credit card and carry a balance.

Experience and research tell us that customers would like new ways to earn Membership Rewards points even when they use a bankcard. This new card will leverage the power of Membership Rewards, help Advanta capture business that has been going to other issuers and provide financial benefits to both of us."

Product Features

The no-fee Rewards Accelerator Card, issued by Advanta National Bank, is a MasterCard or Visu credit card with an 8.5% introductory rate for the next six months. Thereafter, the interest rate for purchases and balance transfers is prime plus 9.65%, which would result today in an APR of 17.5%.

TOTAL P. 8:

Customers who use the Rewards Accelerator Card will earn one Membership Rewards point for every $10 of their total month-end balance, which includes new purchases, cash advances and balance transfers, pius any balance carried over from the previous month.

Customers who transfer a balance of $500 or more from other credit cards to the Rawards Accelerator Card will receive 1,000 benus Membership Rewards points at the time of acquiring the card.

Rewards Accelerator cardholders will earn points provided they become or remain

American Express Cardmembers enrolled in Membership Rewards.

"Our alliance with American Express sets us apart from all other bankcard issuers in terms of the value and high level of convenience the Rewards Accelerator product provides to our customers," said Alex W. "Pete" Bart, chief executive officer of Advanta Corp. "Consumers will be able to enjoy the benefits of American Express' highly successful Membership Rewards program along with the numerous added benefits of a MasterCard or Visa credit card from Advanta."

Kenneth L Chemauk, vice chairman, American Express, said: "This alliance is the latest in a series that American Express has formed around the globe. We believe that the company that provides the broadest choice of high-value products to consumers will win in the marketpiace. There are times when developing a product on our own makes sense and other times when forming an alliance with another industry leader such as Advanta is the wisest strategy."

Response: Advanta-Amex

Privileged and Confidential

As you know, yesterday Advanta announced an alliance with American Express to offer Amex's membership miles program.

We have been advised from executive management, that MasterCard's current response to members inquiring about our reaction to this announcement should one of no comment, especially since we have not had a chance to review the details of the program.

Visa, on the other hand, issued a statement which says the following: "The Visa brand is one of the most recognized and popular brands in the world. Visa encourage its members to expore and develop marketing programs and alliances that leverage the strength of the brand. Today's announcement from Advanta appears to be attempt at this. However, we are concerned about the arrangement's potential negative effect on intersystem competition — something to which we have a longstanding commitment. We will be reviewing the details of this alliance with this issue in mind."
